Why not expand your career by joining our team of transportation professionals! The Regional Traffic Section currently has a challenging opportunity for you to make a difference by providing support to the delivery of a safe and efficient transportation system.

You will provide group and project leadership in conducting traffic data management and collection, traffic operations studies, investigations, and projects. As well as providing technical expertise in the development and implementation of operational methods, systems and other solutions to resolve issues, you will also provide technical consultation and advisory services to regional management, municipal representatives, and other external agencies in the identification, review and resolution of traffic operational issues. You will plan, prioritize, coordinate, and conduct a range of studies, investigations, and projects and will assist in identifying program needs. As well, you will lead or participate in the consultant and contractor acquisition process by preparing or reviewing documents, evaluating submissions, as well as directing and advising consultants and contractors in the administration of assigned projects in accordance with ministry policies and standards.

Qualifications: demonstrated analytical and research skills to evaluate traffic operational problems, as well as knowledge of traffic and highway engineering theories, principals and practices, such as traffic operations and characteristics, traffic demand and forecasting, collision analysis, and roadside safety; knowledge of transportation planning, engineering, and technology, as well as knowledge of the consultant acquisition and management process; demonstrated project management and group leadership skills, including prioritization, budgeting, scheduling, coordination and negotiation skills to manage multiple projects simultaneously; established communication skills to formulate and convey issues and recommendations, respond to inquiries, and prepare reports and project plans; proven interpersonal, advisory, and consultation skills to establish and maintain effective working relationships with clients and provide advice; valid driver's licence to conduct fieldwork.
